

IN THE WOMAN'S WORLD

FOREIGN FADS AND FANCIES

The autumn of 1912 will be one of the best seasons on record for Scotch fashions in general, and it is not unlikely that it will see more women than usual out with the girls. A good many men will openly express their respect for the woman who shoots and declares that only at lunchtime is she welcome. But in spite of this, there has already been a large feminine exodus to Scotland, and the call of the moors is proving quite as strong as the call of the sea, and the right to shoot as well as lunch has been claimed in no uncertain voice.

Fashion has not as much to say in the make of coats and skirts for the moors as in other domains of women's dress. New-heather mixtures, Scotch and Irish tweeds, the favorite color in which is accentuated by the leather accessories, are on the market. The skirts of all frocks will be fairly wide without too much material used in their manufacture. The arrangement of the sleeves under the arm to give freedom of movement has been perfected on these tweed costumes, and the pocket, which is driven from every other dress, appears in this.

Many new colorings in felt hats have appeared, and the new feather mounts have a kind of shaving-brush finish where they are fixed on to the hat.

An ever-changing but always attractive harmony in blue and white—that is one's first and last impression of the fashions this year. Blue skirts and white coats, blue wraps with white facings, white hats with huge blue ribbon bows, blue hats bristling with white wings are seen on every side, and it is quite wonderful to note what variety can be

Safe for Woman's Use

Nothing is more annoying to a refined woman than offensive perspiration or body odor. Those who have used Tylenol's Antiseptic Powder know it to be the one remedy which never disappoints. For general use—dependable in all cases—it should be in every household. Unequaled as a douche. Recommended by physicians everywhere, as it contains no poisons. One 2c box makes two gallons standard solution. All druggists, or write for booklet and free sample.

COLLEGE CLUB MEETS TUESDAY AFTERNOON

The College Club will hold its regular monthly meeting next Tuesday afternoon at 4 o'clock at the Colonial Hotel. The subject of a loan fund will come before the club, and the meeting is an unusually important one.

brought into such a comparatively simple color scheme. Only here and there does a scarlet coat stand out from the rest, while perhaps a touch of crimson in a tie or waist-belt proclaims something original and assertive in the taste of the wearer. For the most part, everything is "deeply, darkly, beautifully blue" and white.

A useful wrap is made in white wool raiment, sufficiently warm, but very light in weight, lined with navy blue soft silk, and festooned over on one side with large motifs and buttons composed of alternate pipings of blue and white-corded silk. For the making of the collar, white linen is used, covered closely with navy blue embroideries. The hat is of soft blue felt, trimmed with white Peter-sam ribbon and lined under the brim with white Tagal straw.

Among many charming hats seen there were some in soft white suede lined under the brims with navy blue stitched glaze silk, and others—these were more numerous than any—in long-haired silk plush, with an underlining in soft straw, chosen always in some contrasting color.

For outdoor gowns of the smarter kind satin is being used, chosen for the most part in dark colors, but boasting a certain amount of brightness, where the folds of the soft rich fabric catch the light. One of these charming gowns is carried out in a beautiful tone of sapphire blue. The upper skirt crosses slightly in front, and is caught up at the sides into the most graceful folds imaginable, while at the waist it is finished with a band and bow of velvet ribbon, selected in a still darker shade of blue. A delightful little jabot of white embroidered muslin and Valenciennes lace, decorated down the center of the front with tiny gold buttons, relieves the severity of the bodies, which is further finished with a soft Robespierre collar of plain white lawn. The long, tight-fitting sleeves are the newest of the new, with their finely pleated ruffles of lawn to match the collar.

UNIQUE NEW YEAR'S DAY CALLING CARD

A photographer of many years standing, but who is not following the profession now, sends the following to the Honolulu Star-Bulletin, which may be of interest to the amateur photographers of this city. He refers to it as a "king" here it is.

To make a unique and strictly characteristic calling card for New Year's Day is one of the simplest things in the world to the amateur with a camera. Take a piece of white cardboard about 18x24 inches in size. In the upper right hand corner cut two slits crossing each other in the form of a cross, the up and down slit being about five inches long. Scram the cut pieces back on the face of the card. In the lower right hand corner cut two slightly oblique parallel slits about three inches apart, cutting across one end of the other and enroll this back on the face of the card board. Next take some black paint that will not run, and, in fairly good letters, write in any form you desire, the words "We Wish You a Happy New Year."

Behind one of the slits that you cut in the card now fasten your own photograph, and behind the other place the photograph of your wife or your sweetheart. Tack this up and photograph it, making your prints just large enough to cover a good-sized visiting card. Mount the prints on the cards and you will have about as unique a calling card as there is made.

"BELGIAN ROYAL MOTHER DIED NOV. 26, SAYS LETTER"

A letter received this morning by R. F. Lange, vice-consul of Belgium, announces the death of Her Royal Highness, the Countess of Flanders, who is the mother of the king of the Belgians, at Brussels on Nov. 26.

This news was first received by cablegram at the Belgian consulate in San Francisco from the minister of foreign affairs at Brussels, on Nov. 27, and was forwarded by mail to the representative of that country in Honolulu.

HANDBAGS. Morocco has taken a new lease of life so far as handbags are concerned, and some of the newest receptacles of that material are inlaid artistically with a smooth, highly polished leather. They come in lovely shades of brown, green or blue, mounted and edged with gift, German silver or gun-metal. Some of them are of square shape and others are oblong, but both sorts have an outside pocket with a slant flap, metal outlined, a strap handle, through which the fingers may be slipped, and all of them contain round change purses and a tiny powder puff.

Graphite, pin and real seal as well as pigskin are made into 8-inch envelope bags of a very smart order. These have broad strap handles fastening with a buckle which may be run forward or backward to accommodate the size of the hand, a plain slant flap and contain two compartments. One section is fitted with a mirror and the tiniest of manicure sets; the other is for the carcase and the change purse.

A STORY.

One day—one day Willie Jones went out in the back yard, and there he saw a rope hanging over the alley fence—a big rope—and Willie Jones just took hold of that rope and he pulled and he pulled and he pulled and after a while he pulled the yard full of rope, and it reached up high in a pile, and it all fell down on top of Willie Jones and buried him, but Willie Jones didn't care, and he just kept on pulling and pulling and pulling and pulling at that old rope, and pretty soon he pulled so hard that he pulled the end off the rope, and Willie Jones saw that there wasn't any end to the rope, and he'd have to go on pulling and pulling and pulling and pulling forever, but he didn't want to do that, and so he stopped pulling and went in to breakfast.

THE STYLISH VEIL

The woman who does not shopping is sure to be attracted to the veil counter. When the most strenuous shopper can think of nothing else to buy, there is always the veil. The magic effects in veils are to leaders today. They are not new, but they are becoming. There is something softening in these veils of black and white. They may be white, with a faint tracery of design in a black thread, or they may be black with the design sketched in with a white thread. The former, however, are, as a rule, more becoming than the latter.

The woman on a hunt for a motor veil will find a magnificent one of chiffon which is arranged to cling to the brim of the hat by the elastic on the shirring at the top. The plaited frill at the bottom of the veil acts as a pretty plaited collar around the neck. These veils come in all colors and are really quite "dressy." For the motorist who likes to see through her veil there is a veil of chiffon consistency with a window of fancy mesh set in right over the eye space. They are much more becoming than the veil with isinglass openings; in fact, they are very fetching.

BOLL SALES

Doll sales among the women's clubs and societies throughout the city have become a special fad this year, and one of the oddest ones of the year will be held today and tomorrow by the members of the Lei Aloha Chapter at the residence of Mrs. E. L. Howard, 1071 Beretania street. There are dolls from every country and all are dressed in appropriate costume. Besides the dolls there will be the finest of Oriental goods imported directly from the Far East. It is hoped by the members of the chapter that all the dolls and other articles will be sold.

San Francisco faces a dilemma in her efforts to acquire the Hetch Hetchy water supply. Secretary Fish wants the city's promise that the water and electrical power will be developed immediately. It is not thought by the city officials that this can be done at once.
